

Lab Report

Semester: 2

Introduction

The experiment objective was to measure request throughput under deterministic workload condition

Equipment and Setup

Test stand included a local API server, Neo4j database, and reproducible input dataset with fixed seed

Results

Measured throughput remained stable across repeated runs and error rate stayed below one percent

Conclusion

The configured setup is suitable for routine validation of parser and rule engine behavior.